Materials like lime and sandstone all used to come from similar geographical origin, hence their bonding was unique; like children from the same parents; Nowadays with changing landscapes, we do not know where the materials come from hence it does not bond well; like children from different parents do not necessarily bond well; this affects the overall strength & quality of the construction too...

Dhirbhai Mistry, Mahuva

Architects and Builders today are not educated to respect our knowledge; they have their own limitations of their technical education; We, Mistrys are not respected by architects, therefore we limit our role to doing what they specify; There are many areas where you can avoid materials like concrete, etc especially in regions where stone, lime, is still available and many senior traditional mistrys are still practicing...

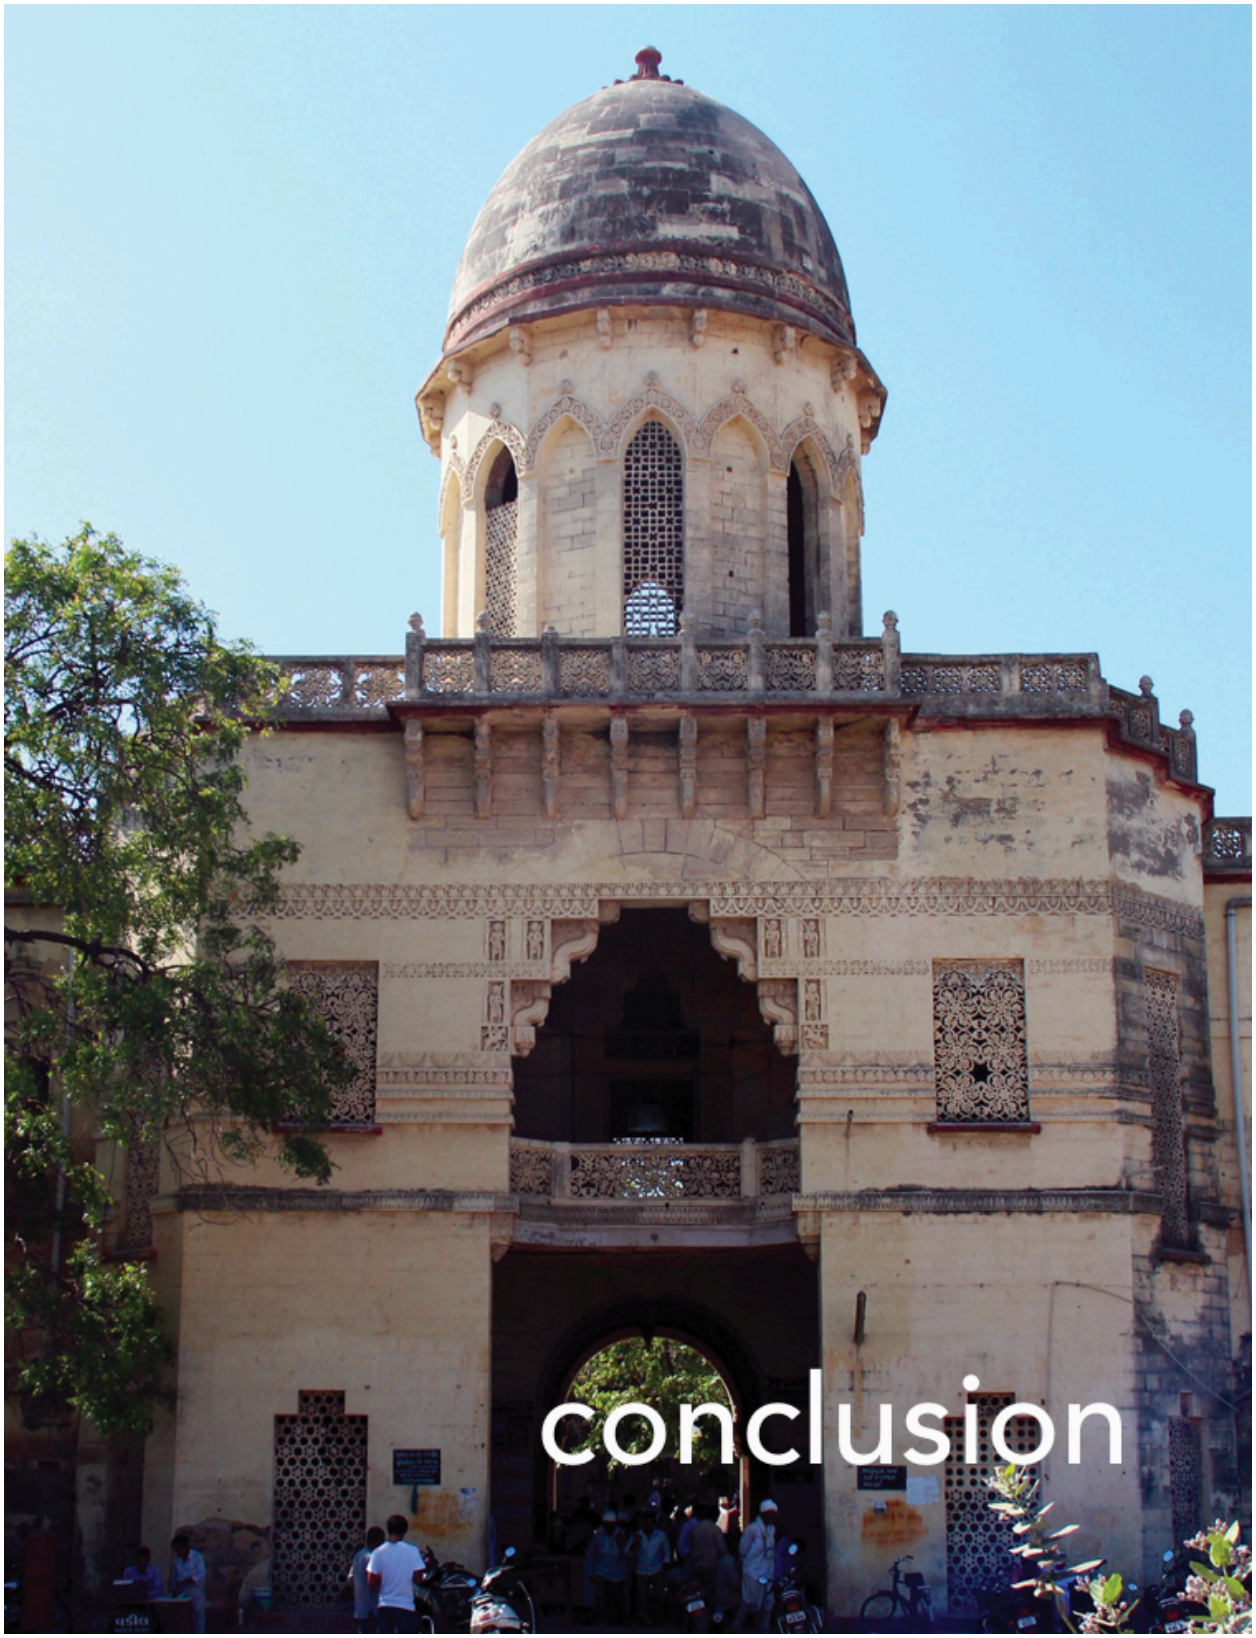

Batukbhai Dabhi Mistry, Porbandar region

None of our children want to do the same work as we do, that is be Mistrys; they all want to make quick money and go to cities; their work and ideas get limited acceptance there; Our knowledge is traditional and we have learnt the art of building from our forefathers; When we see an old building constructed by our forefathers and seniors, we are really proud that its standing today after decades in such good condition; Pride of artisans is in the affinity with which we understand our materials, its properties and qualities; I am proud that my knowledge will be of some use for coming generations, we are happy to share...
